BAD ACCIDENT TO A BOY.

Little Son of Mr. S. J. Davis Received Severe Fracture of Arm.

Samuel Davis, the six-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Davis, No. 214 Market street, sustained a fearful injury Sunday morning about 10 o'clock by falling from a step ladder on the high porch of the residence to the ground, a distance of nearly fifteen feet. After the little fellow had fallen to the ground, the step ladder upon which he had been climbing on the porch, came tumbling down, striking him on the left arm, causing a compound fracture, and a dislocation of the elbow complicated with what the physicians term a colles fracture.

The boy was attended by Drs. Jos. C. Shepard, Asa Love, C. T. Harper and W. J. Love. At first it was thought the limb would have to be amputated but now the surgeons think the arm can be saved, though it will be practically useless to the little fellow in the future.

Want to Lay Pipe.

CHURCHES SUNDAY.

At All of Them Were Touching References to President's Tragic Death.

WERE TWO SPECIAL SERMONS

At the First Baptist and St. Paul's Lutheran Churches There Were Appropriate Services — McKinley's Last Words a Text.

In nearly all of the Wilmington churches in which services were held Sunday there were touching references in sermon and prayer to the death of the late lamented President McKinley.

At the First Baptist church the services were made especially fitting at night by a special sermon which the pastor, Rev. Dr. Calvin S. Blackwell, preached from the last words of Mr. McKinley. "It is God's Way; His Will be Done." The congregation which assembled to hear the sermon was very large and the spacious church building was packed to its utmost capacity, many chairs from the Sunday school room having been pressed into service and placed in the aisles.

Before the sermon, in prayer Dr. Blackwell made a beautiful invocation for the bereaved wife of the late President and asked for her early deliverance from the great grief with which she is afflicted.

The Bible lesson was from that part of the Scriptures referring to Gethsemine and Calvary and from the same passages of Scripture were taken the words of the President in his dying hour. Dr. Blackwell then began his sermon and had the undivided attention of every one in the hearing of his voice. The history of Christianity from the early ages was taken up and each great tragic event to recent times was shown to have been but a stepping stone to higher civilization. The assassination of Lincoln, Garfield and McKinley were mentioned as having been according to God's will and though deplorable, but a step for the betterment of their people. The assassination of Lincoln was to partially unite the two great sections—North and South; the dying of Garfield was a sacrifice to teach the Nation better and purer methods of government and the tragic death of Mr. McKinley was but to arouse the people to the dangers of anarchy and material commercialism.

At the conclusion of the service the entire congregation sang, "Nearer My God to Thee," the last verse softly; appropriate from the fact that this song was softly chanted by Mr. McKinley shortly before he relapsed into unconsciousness.

At St. Paul's Lutheran Church.

At St. Paul's Luthern Church Sunday morning the services also partook of a memorial nature and the pastor, Rev. Dr. A. G. Voigt, preached a splendid sermon appropriate to the great bereavement of the country. His text was the 97th Psalm, second verse: "Clouds and darkness are round about him; righteousness and judgment are the habitation of his throne."

Dr. Voigt spoke most entertainingly and profitably to a large congregation. The text, he said, was a word from God to the Nation in mourning. He recited the circumstances of former assassinations, and said that we are now in no such crises as in those days. The taking off of one man cannot subvert this government. Yet it is well to remember the truth that God reigns—a truth often forgotten until some extraordinary or shocking event, like the assassination of our beloved President brings it to our minds afresh.

The speaker paid a beautiful tribute to the President and continuing said: "It is not only his death that we mourn, but particularly the manner of his death. The death of a President fills the country with mourning. The death of a good and wise President produces deeper grief. The death of a President by assassination awakens sorrow mingled with detestation. But the death of a good and wise President inflicted by an anarchist fills us with sorrow, co-mingled with horror and execration, yea, fear. For what are we coming to if the red hand of the anarchist can be lifted against the head of this government of the people, by the people, for the people!"

Dr. Voigt closed with a beautiful expression of sympathy to those dear by ties of blood to the late President, asking God's comfort from out of the cloud of darknes to them.

AT THE OPERA HOUSE TO-NIGHT.

The Clivette Company Will Entertain With Feats of Magic and Other Specialities.

The "Great Clivette," supported by his famous company of European entertainers, will hold the boards of the Opera House to night, for one night only. The "Great Clivette" is said to be without a doubt the leading magician of the world, having appeared in every country under the sun at the head of his own company, and this will be his first visit to this city. This is not a so-called one man show, as has been the custom of all other magicians who have appeared here, but a fully equipped company of the world's leading magical stars, including "Clivette, the King of Magicians." The scenery and paraphernalia used by this company are said to be worth $30,000, and the costumes of each and every member of the aggregation are gorgeous. Seats are on sale at Gerken's cigar store.

JOHN DAVIS BURKHEIMER.

Well Known Young Man Passed Away Yesterday Morning After Extended Illness—The Funeral To-day.

Many friends and acquaintances in Wilmington and elsewhere will hear with profound sorrow of the death of Mr. John Davis Burkheimer, which occurred yesterday morning at the family home, No. 208 North Fourth street, at 5:50 o'clock.

Mr. Burkheimer had been ill for seven weeks with typhoid fever but it was thought until a short while before his death that he would recover from the dread disease. Peritonitis, however, followed the attack of fever presumably as the result of a fall from a bicycle on the shell road a little more than a year ago and weakened from the continued fever he soon passed away. He was conscious almost up to the hour of death and conversed feelingly with members of the family.

Mr. Burkheimer was born in Wilmington, March 14th, 1872, and was therefore in his thirtieth year. His father was the late Washington Burkheimer, long since gone. His aged mother, Mrs. S. V. Burkheimer, with three brothers, three sisters, a sorrowing wife and two little daughters survive him. The sisters and brothers are Misses Hattie and Maggie Burkheimer, Mrs. Anson Alligood, Messrs. H. D., E. B. and W. L. Burkheimer. The wife was Miss Mary Wood, daughter of Mr. R. B. Wood, of Brunswick, Ga., and the little daughters aged two and one years, respectively, are named Miriam Ward and Virginia.

Deceased was well known in Wilmington for his jovial and amiable disposition, a high sense of honor and many sterling traits of character. For years he was employed in the dry goods business with Messrs. Morris Bear Brothers, and lately he had been a valued employe of the Rheinstein Dry Goods Company. He served for a period of six or seven years in the old Wilmington Steam Fire Engine Company and was universally liked.

All members of the family were with him when he died, except Mr. H. D. Burkheimer, a brother, who arrived with his wife and children from Newbern at 12:15 o'clock.

The funeral will be conducted this morning at 10 o'clock from his late residence and the interment will be in Oakdale cemetery.

THE PRESIDENT'S FUNERAL.

Governor Aycock Extends Invitation to 500 North Carolinians to be Present. Many From Wilmington.

"I request you to attend the funeral of President McKinley at Washington Wednesday noon, representing North Carolina."

That is the text of a telegram received Sunday night from Governor Aycock by a number of prominent citizens of Wilmington, among whom are Col. Walker Taylor, Maj. W. F. Robertson and Col. Geo. L. Morton, of the Governor's staff; Col. A. M. Waddell, Col. Warren G. Elliott, ex-Governor D. L. Russell, Maj. W. H. Bernard, Dr. T. B. Kingsbury, ex-Mayor S. H. Fishblate and Mr. J. W. Norwood.

Yesterday another telegram was received from the Governor stating the change in the funeral arrangements and asking the gentlemen to be present in Washington on Tuesday morning. Col. Taylor and Major Robertson left last night, going direct to Washington. Mr. W. F. Swaringen, editor of the Whiteville News, was also in the city yesterday en route to attend the funeral in response to Governor Aycock's message.

Governor Aycock has extended the invitation above to five hundred North Carolinians in various parts of the State and indications are that the old North State will be well represented at the funeral.

CONCERT THURSDAY POSTPONED.

Event in Y. M. C. A. Will Not Take Place Until a Date to be Named Later.

The concert advertised for Thursday evening in the Y. M. C. A. auditorium, by Mr. J. Keener Westbrook supported by a select vaudeville company, has been postponed to a date to be announced later on account of the memorial exercises in honor of the late President McKinley.

The proceeds will be divided with the Y. M. C. A. junior department and an evening of rare entertainment is promised.

Cotton Dropped a Peg.

The local cotton market in sympathy with New York spot quotations yesterday declined in price to 8 cents for middling. Last year at this time the quotations here were on a basis of 10¼ cents for middling, or 2¼ cents per pound higher than now. The receipts yesterday were 863 bales, against 4,949 bales on a corresponding day last season.

News of the Excursions.

Hatch Bros. brought down one of the largest excursion parties of the season yesterday from Dunn, N. C., and intermediate points. The train returned last night. Another party will be brought down by Hatch Bros. to-day from Goldsboro and still another will reach the city over the W. C. & A. railroad from Mullins, S. C.

The Atlantic Coast Line has placed round trip tickets on sale to Washington on account of obsequies of the late President McKinley, at the rate of one fare for the round trip. Tickets sold September 16-17th; final limit five days from date of sale.

A MEMORIAL SERVICE

Thursday Set Apart in Wilmington to Honor Memory of the Departed President.

BUSINESS HOUSES TO CLOSE.

Ministers Will Meet To-day at Y. M. C. A. to Formulate Programme of Observance—Agreement by Wholesale Merchants On the Wharf.

Pursuant to the proclamation lately issued by President Roosevelt, Thursday in Wilmington will be observed as a day of mourning and prayer out of respect to the memory of the late lamented President Wm. McKinley, whose tragic death has already smitten the nation with bitter grief.

In order that the observance may be in order and conducted with the proper spirit and reverence, the STAR is requested to say that the ministers of all the churches are earnestly requested to meet in the parlors of the Y. M. C. A. this morning at 10 o'clock to arrange for a service of humiliation and prayer on that day at some central point where as many citizens as possible may gather to pay out of full hearts their homage of love and reverence to the chief magistrate. The public will be duly apprised of the programme and the people of Wilmington generally are invited to enter into the spirit of the hour.

A movement has already been set on foot for a closing of the business houses of the city for a part of the day at least, and the memorial meeting bids fair to be one of the largest in recent years.

On the wharf, where much of the wholesale business of the city is done, there will be a practical cessation of all duties for the entire day, and the up-town districts will also be in the line of observance as far as possible. Yesterday the following agreement as to the closing was circulated on the wharf and signed by those whose names are affixed:

WILMINGTON, N. C., Sept. 16.

We, the undersigned, agree to close our places of business on Thursday, Sept. 19th, in accordance with terms of the proclamation issued by the President of the United States:

D. L. Gore Company, D. McEachern, Jos. H. Watters, Hall & Pearsall, Swift & Co., Armour Packing Co., McNair & Pearsall, Vollers & Hashagen, The Worth Co., S. P. McNair, C. C. Covington & Co., Calder Bros., Corbett & Co., R. N. Sweet, Paterson, Downing & Co., Jas. T. Riley & Co., Williams Bros., E. Peschau & Co., Willard Bag and Manufacturing Company, R. W. Hicks, Peter McQueen, Jr., J. A. Springer & Co., B. F. Keith Company, J. A. Taylor, Wilmington Brokerage Company, J. C. Stevenson Co., James I. Metts, A. H. Slocomb Cooperage Company, Boney & Harper Milling Company, B. F. Mitchell Co., J. S. McEachern Company, The John R. Turrentine Company, The Coal, Cement and Supply Company, John H. Brown, Robinson & King, Stone, Rourk & Co., Brooks & Taylor, W. A. Whitehead & Son, Adrian & Co., Creasy Bros.

Similar petitions will be most likely circulated to day in other sections of the city, and the closing of stores and offices to attend the services will be general.

"ALVIN JOSLIN" COMPANY

Old-Time Comedy Enjoyed by Fair Sized Audience Last Night.

The theatrical season of 1901-02 was inaugurated at the Opera House last evening with a very clever presentation of the old-time but ever popular rural comedy, "Alvin Joslin" as played by a company headed by Messrs. Saylor & Miller. The company as a whole is composed of capable artists who furnished each of the one hundred and eighty laughs in as many minutes, as advertised.

The attendance was not large as a consequence of the uncertainty of the appearance of the company, but it was much larger than expected and those present seemed to enjoy every feature of the performance.

The clog dancing as a specialty was good and has been scarcely excelled on the stage here. The company leaves to-day for Florence.

Parker, the Furniture Man.

Mr. N. F. Parker, the furniture man, is filling a very large order for The Orton, which is now being thoroughly renovated and refurnished. Mr. Parker received the contract over competitors from all parts of the country and that he is filling it with such eminent satisfaction is a decided compliment to his ability as a house furnisher. The room furnishings are in golden oak and mahogany of the best grade and most highly polished. The chairs, rockers and tables are to match. The ladies' drawing room and parlors are furnished with mahogany and the lobby with settees upholstered in best grade leather, with centre piece handsome in design. Davenport and easy chairs are also furnished for the lobby. The reception room is with mahogany and leather, while the reading room has furnishings of polished oak tables and arm chairs. The Orton will soon be the most elegantly furnished hostelry in the State.

Wilmington Elk's Honor.

Past Exalted Ruler H. J. Gerken has received from Grand Secretary Geo. A. Reynolds, Saginaw, Mich., his credentials as District Deputy of the order of Elks in North and South Carolina. It was previously stated that Mr. Gerken would be District Deputy of North Carolina but the credentials give him still more territory—the two States.

LOCAL DOTS.

— A new lodge of Elks was instituted last night at Columbia, S. C. The Spartanburg and Charlotte Elks went over to see that things went in order.

— As a mark of respect to the memory of the late President, both the Third and Princess street entrances to the Court House were draped in mourning yesterday.

BY WILLIAM H. BERNARD

WILMINGTON, N. C.

TUESDAY MORNING, SEPT. 17.

ONE REMEDY.

Since the assassination of President McKinley the sentiment has become universal in this country that drastic measures must be adopted to exclude the vicious elements of other countries. It is a pretty well established fact whence these elements come and that ought to simplify the problem that we have to deal with. The problem as to Chinese immigration was solved by a sweeping act excluding all Chinese laborers, and thus the Pacific States were saved from being overrun by the Asiatic hordes that were then pouring in and that would have continued to pour in if that exclusion act had not been passed.

There were two main reasons advanced to justify that act, both based on the law of self preservation. One was that these hordes of Chinese laborers came into competition with the other laborers of the country, and especially the laborers in the Pacific States, into which they were flocking by thousands weekly, and seeking employment at wages that other workmen would starve on. The question had resolved itself into whether they must be kept out or the white workmen go out and surrender the field to them. It was decided, and properly decided, that they must be kept out and the white wage earner remain in.

Another reason was that they were a nonassimilable race with nothing in common with the American people, with no conception of the spirit of American institutions, with no adaptation to American citizenship and no idea of becoming citizens if permitted to do so, which, of course, they would not be, for that would mean the eventual Mongolianizing of the Pacific States.

These were two reasons, both good ones, and deemed sufficient to justify the rigid legislation enacted to keep the Chinese out, but either or both are a whit stronger than the reasons that exist for the rigid exclusion of the vicious elements of the countries that breed anarchism, nihilism, communism and other isms destructive of law and order and regulated society.

The Chinese who locate in this and other countries are as a rule industrious, thrifty, temperate, peacefully disposed and easily governed. As Minister Wu Ting-fang said in an address to a Jewish assembly at Atlantic City some time ago the "prejudice," as he called it, against the Chinese, was not on account of their vices but on account of their thrift and other characteristics, which he called "virtues." There was some truth in that although he only saw one side of it; but if the American people do not welcome the Chinese on account of their "virtues," but exclude them, there is even more reason why they should exclude the riff-raff of European countries, especially of the incubating beds of anarchism and nihilism, on account of their vices. We do exclude some, the less dangerous class, under laws which apply to all foreign countries from which immigrants come, but under these laws the very worst elements come in without the slightest hindrance or restraint.

How then can we reach them and keep them out while permitting the unobjectionable to come in? This land always has been and probably always will be open to the honest bread-seeker or home-seeker, but the time has come when the line must be drawn against the disturbers of the peace, the foes of society, and advocates of riot and assassination. This class has nothing in common with the American people, and is no more assimilable than the Chinese hordes, who by a sweeping and specific law are excluded.

It might not be practicable and would not be desirable to enact a sweeping law, excluding all immigrants from Russia, Austria-Hungary or Italy, the countries that inflict upon us the elements that advocate riot and bloodshed, not in open, manly fight, but by stealth and Judas-like treachery, holding one hand Czolgosz-like in friendship and stabbing or shooting to death with the other.

How can we keep them out? By a radical change in our restrictive immigration laws, with special application to the countries from which the assassin element comes, these laws to be as specific and drastic as they can be made, incorporated in essence in treaties made with those nations, thus securing as far as practicable their co-operation in making these laws effective. There is not one of these governments that is not indirectly responsible for the dumping of their vicious elements upon us, for while they take precaution by law and passports to keep objectionable people out, they make no effort to keep them in but are glad to see them go and become a menace to or a burden upon other nations, knowing full well that most of them eventually land here if they do not start for this country direct. When they become too threatening or troublesome there the authorities unleash the blood hounds of the law, pursue them, drive out those they do not catch and this country becomes their refuge, and then they vent their malice and plot against this government as they did against the monarchies from which they were driven.

There is a passport system in some European Governments which applies to Americans as it does to other nationalities, and we ought to insist upon extending the passport system to the emigrants coming to this country, and make it virtually a certificate of character, a certificate endorsed by the authorities of the Government and by the Government itself.

We should require that every Government from which emigrants come should co-operate with us in keeping out the vicious elements of its own population and should subject every contemplating emigrant to questions and answers which would show who and what the emigrant is. It should show the nationality; the number in family; the objective point; the means possessed; occupation; religion, if any; whether members of societies, secret or open, and if so what; whether ever arrested for crime, and if so what. These and other questions should be asked and answered, and the answerer to be required to swear to the truth of the answers. If there were anything objectionable in this series of answers, which the immigrant must present before landing, he should be sent back whence he came, and if his government objected or refused to receive him we should emphasize and enforce our action by drawing the line tighter and shutting the gates against all immigrants from that country.

It is in our power to protect ourselves from these foes of government and society, and stealthy murderers if we show the same resolution that we did in solving the Chinese horde problem.

WITHIN TWENTY YEARS.

One of the pleas made by the Southern advocates of committing the Democratic party to the Republican policies of tariff protection, forcible territorial expansion, ship subsidies, etc., is that Southern industrial progress is dependent upon the carrying out of these policies, and yet the progress of the South on industrial lines has been within the past two decades marvellous.

As an illustration we quote the following from the Atlanta Journal, showing what has been accomplished in the cotton manufacturing industry, for the future prosperity of which some of these new departure so-called Democrats seem to be especially apprehensive. It says:

"The fact that cotton manufacturing increased in the North only 3 per cent. during the year ended September 1st, while it increased 30 per cent. in the South, is one of the many proofs of the fact that the South is making more rapid industrial progress than any other section of the country. During the period referred to the number of cotton spindles in the North increased 460,000; the number in the South increased 1,279,320. The growth of the cotton spinning industry in the South since the first cotton exposition in Atlanta gave a powerful impulse to this industry has been almost incredible.

"In 1880, the year before that exposition was held, there were in the whole South only 164 cotton mills with a total of 561,360 spindles and 12,329 looms. The South has no less than 531 mills in operation and many more building. The total number of spindles in the South has increased to 5,819,835, and the number of looms to 122,902.

The consumption of cotton by southern mills has increased from 188,748 bales in 1880, to 1,667,012 bales in 1901.

The number of spindles set up in the South during the last 12 months has been more than twice as great as the total number in the entire South in 1880.

In the last ten years the number has increased 230 per cent. and it has nearly doubled in five years. During the next 12 months the South will make an immense advance in the great industry for which its manifold advantages are now admitted even in New England and this time next year we will be reading another chapter in this story of wonderful progress.

The men who put their money in cotton mills do not seem to share the apprehensions of Mr. Cleveland, of South Carolina, who declares that the prosperity of Southern mills is absolutely dependent upon more foreign markets, and these are dependent upon subsidies to build American ships. Judging from this showing, Mr. Cleveland is unnecessarily alarmed, for there is nothing in it to justify any gloomy horoscoping. But cotton manufacturing is only one of the industries that have made marvellous progress within the past twenty years.

PURSUING A PHANTOM.

During the past few years there has been more talk about and more planning for Asiatic trade than for the trade of all the rest of the world combined. The presumption seems to be that because about one-half the earth's population dwells on that side, therefore it should be a bonanza for the American trader. Our consul at Shanghai claims that we sold to China last year $18,500,000 worth of merchandise, while China sold to us $19,588,000 worth. Mr. Goodnow's figures of sales are considerably larger than those of the Chinese customs officers, but he explains this by saying that a considerable amount of American goods reach Chinese ports indirectly, through other countries, and are therefore not classed as American goods.

But if we, as he claims, sell China $18,500,000 worth of goods and buy from her $19,588,000 worth are we not a better customer to China than she is to us? As far as she is concerned she should not only be willing but anxious to have an "open door" and keep it open.

Our commerce now amounts to about $2,000,000,000 with, China a total of $38,088,000, an insignificant showing compared with the grand total, and this has cost us more than all the balance combined. With the trade expansionist that has been one of the principal arguments in defence of the Philippine expansion policy, and the radical and costly departure from the traditions and policies of the past. We have expended hundreds of millions of dollars to push our trade in the East, and the result is that China sold us last year $1,088,000 more goods than we sold her. At that rate how long would it take to get back what this trade costs us?

Game Warden Pond, of New York, is making a pretty heavy pull on the Arctic Freezing Company, which he seems disposed to freeze out of business. He has instituted suits against it for packing game birds out of season, the aggregate penalties for which will amount to $1,197,000. If the Warden wins his case each bird found in the possession of the company will cost it $85, and they are not ostriches either.

CURRENT COMMENT.

—— The first noteworthy incident of the Sampson-Schley inquiry is in the nature of a guarantee that the proceedings shall be conducted not only with formal precision, but in strict accordance wish the American spirit of fair play.—Washington Star, Ind.

—— Do you observe that Russia has notified us that no American kerosene will be admitted to Manchuria? If she hasn't taken possession of that province of North China, how can she exclude our cotton products and our oil? But, the fact is, Russia has been playing her usual diplomatic game, and her expressions of friendship have been of the nature of "oily gammon."—Brooklyn Citizen, Dem,

—— The objections of Rear Admiral Schley to Rear Admiral Howison as a member of the Court of Inquiry, made as they were, could hardly fail of being sustained, as they were, and Rear Admiral Howison excused from further service. It is not worth while to discuss the question whether he would not have made a thoroughly impartial member of the court—as in all probability he would—because the one desire is to have a court to which there can be no objection on any side and whose judgment will not on any account be called in question. Further proceedings will now be delayed until the Navy Department selects a member for the vacancy. — Philadelphia Record, Dem.

—— Twist it and turn it as one may, the decision of the two members of the Schley court of inquiry whose competency was unquestioned administered a reproof to Rear Admiral Howison and Acting Secretary Hackett as severe as could well be conceived. In spite of objections to him, Admiral Howison insisted on serving on the Schley court of inquiry, and Acting Secretary Hackett insisted on having him serve. Admirals Dewey and Benham took little time in reversing his decision and that of the Assistant Secretary, and, having heard the evidence, they decided that he was prejudiced against Admiral Schley, and was not competent to try a case where his reputation was involved.—Jacksonville Times-Union, Dem.

Saturday afternoon one of the negro men concluded he would not remain in prison any longer, and attempted to break by the guard. ## THE LITTLE OLD SPINET.

Do you see the little spinet standing in the corner there?
Great-grandmother loved to play it when she was a maiden fair.
Sunbeams through the window twinkle, flick'ring on its yellowed keys,
And we almost hear the tinkle of the old time melodies.

Sat there, while a smile of pleasure lighted up her fair young face;
From without the rose scent lingers, drifting on the summer breeze,
While she plays with fairy fingers all the old time melodies.

And the little spinet waits her patiently these long, long years,
Till its mellow voice is broken, harsh, and has the sound of tears,
Yet it seems the sunbeams straying, flick'ring on its yellowed keys,
And her fairy fingers playing all the old time melodies!

—Mary Small Wagner in Optimist.

A CASE OF LAW.

The Decision That Was Rendered by a Basuto Solomon.

Law is a complicated thing, and some of its decisions seem not to be founded in equity. Probably most readers will pass that criticism upon the case recorded below:

Basutoland, being broken and mountainous, was until recently the resort of lions, leopards and other wild animals. Now, however, the hillsides which were once the resort of these savage creatures are the pasture grounds of tens of thousands of cattle. Nearly all dangerous animals have been driven away from Basutoland, but not long ago a leopard appeared on the outskirts of a village. The animal soon became as badly frightened as the villagers and sought safety in flight.

The next morning the inhabitants turned out for a hunt. One of the hunters was climbing a steep rock when he suddenly found himself face to face with the leopard, whose retreat was cut off by the rock itself. Neither the man nor the animal could escape the encounter.

The dilemma was an awkward one, for the climber was unarmed. Realizing his danger, he put forth his hands and in desperation caught hold of the leopard on each side of its jaw, holding it at arm's length and calling for help. The leopard clawed and tore his captor, but the man held on till help arrived, and the beast was speared.

Now came a question of law. By Basuto law the skin belonged to the chief, who must reward one of three claimants—either the man who speared the leopard or the man who held it so that it was possible to spear it or the man who, being warned by the barking of his dog, first discovered the animal in the village.

The Basuto Solomon decided the case as follows: The man who speared it could not have done so but for the man who held it, and the man who held it could not have known of its existence if the dog had not first warned the village; therefore the credit for the killing belonged to the dog, whose owner was entitled to the reward.—Youth's Companion.

Now She Hates Him.

A young man and a young woman lean over the front gate. They are lovers. It is moonlight. He is loath to leave, as the parting is the last. He is about to go away. She is reluctant to see him depart. They swing on the gate.

"I'll never forget you," he says, "and if death should claim me my last thought will be of you."

"I'll be true to you," she sobs. "I'll never see anybody else or love them as long as I live."

They part.

Six years later he returns. His sweetheart of former years has married. They meet at a party. She has changed greatly. Between the dances the recognition takes place.

"Let me see," she muses, with her fan beating a tattoo on her pretty hand, "was it you or your brother who was my old sweetheart?"

"Really I don't know," he says. "Probably my father."—London Answers.

Rang In Its Third Century.

The bell on historic old St. John's church, in Richmond, where Patrick Henry made his famous speech prior to the American Revolution, rang in the twentieth century. This bell is thus given the distinction of being the only one in this country, with the possible exception of that on old Liberty hall, in Philadelphia, that has rung in three centuries. Old St. John's bell has an interesting history. Many years ago, when the old structure for which it was made was repaired, the bell was removed and sold. Later its last owner presented it to the Virginia Historical society, by which it was restored to the church.—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

COTTON MARKETS.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

NEW YORK, Sept. 16.—The market for cotton futures opened firm, with prices five to ten points higher, these figures later proving to be the bottom for the session. After the call the tendency was steadily upward until an advance of sixteen to eighteen points had occurred, at which time the feeling was very bullish, despite the fact that new business came in slowly. At no time during the forenoon did the bear faction manifest the least disposition to assume aggressive tactics, while the bulls were quick to take advantage of every buying order from the outside to support the market. January monopolized attention most of the time, though "talent" was inclined to place a portion of its interest in March and May contracts. The initial rise was largely in keeping with bullish cables, the latter reflecting an advance of two and three points in place of an expected decline of two points. Active demand for spot cotton with a further rise of two points in futures abroad created a very favorable impression throughout the trade here. Very heavy rains over the central belt, amounting to cloud bursts in many instances led to the belief that the crop must have been seriously injured, and caused buying for a sharp advance. Crop reports from Mississippi and Alabama were much less favorable than of late. In the early afternoon the market was very steady and at times quite active, with prices holding well up to top figures of the morning. The South and Wall street bought with greater confidence, while sellers were scarce and for the most part consisted of buyers on the opening. Advices from Fall River and from dry goods centers were very encouraging. Receipts were liberal, but still fell short of those for the same day last year. The market was finally steady, and net fifteen to twenty points higher.

FOLLOWING THE SEA.

BY AMBROSE BIERCE.

"At the time of the great earthquake of 1868," said Mr. Swiddler—William Swiddler of Calaveras—"I was at Arica. Sam Baxter was with us. I think he had gone from San Francisco to make a railway or something. On the morning of the quake Sam and I had gone down to the beach to bathe. We had shed our shoes and begun to moult, when there was a slight tremor of the earth, as if the elephant who supports it was pushing upward or lying down and getting up again. Next, the surges, which were flattening themselves upon the sand and dragging away such small trifles as they could lay hold of, began racing out seaward as if they had received a dispatch that somebody was not expected to live. This was needless, for we did not expect to live.

"When the sea had receded entirely out of sight, we started after it, for, it will be remembered, we had come to bathe, and bathing without some kind of water is not refreshing in a hot climate.

"For the first four or five miles the walking was very difficult, although the grade was tolerably steep. The ground was soft, there were tangled forests of sea weed, old rotten ships, rusty anchors, human skeletons and a multitude of things to impede the pedestrian. The floundering sharks bit our legs as we toiled past them, and we were constantly slipping down upon the flatfish strewn about like orange peel on a sidewalk.

"Presently, away on the western horizon, I saw the sea coming back. It occurred to me then that I did not wish it to come back. A tidal wave is nearly always wet, and I was now a good way from home, with no means of making a fire.

"The same was true of Sam, but he did not appear to think of it in that way. He stood quite still a moment with his eyes fixed on the advancing line of water, then turned to me, saying very earnestly:

"'Tell you what, William, I never wanted a ship so bad from the cradle to the grave!'

"By this time the tidal wave was close upon us. Call that a wave! It was one solid green wall of water, higher than Niagara falls, stretching as far as we could see to right and left without a break in its towering front. It was by no means clear what we ought to do. The moving wall showed no projections by means of which the most daring climber could hope to reach the top. There was no ivy; there were no window ledges. Stay—there was the lightning rod! No, there wasn't any lightning rod. Of course not.

"Looking despairingly upward, I made a tolerably good beginning thinking of all the mean actions I had wrought in the flesh, when I saw projecting beyond the crest of the wave a ship's bowsprit, with a man sitting on it reading a newspaper. Thank fortune, we were saved!

"Falling upon our knees with tearful gratitude, we got up again and ran—ran as fast as we could, I suspect—for now the whole fore part of the ship budged through the water just above our heads and might lose its balance any moment. If we had only brought along our umbrellas!

"I shouted to the man on the bowsprit to drop us a line. He merely replied that his correspondence was already very onerous, and he hadn't any pen and ink.

"Then I told him I wanted to get aboard. He said I would find one on the beach, about three leagues to the southward, where the Nancy Tucker went ashore.

"At these replies I was disheartened. It was not so much that the man withheld assistance as that he made puns. Presently, however, he folded his newspaper, put it carefully away in his pocket, went and got a line and let it down to us just as we were about to give up the race. Sam made a lunge at it and got it. I laid hold of his legs, the end of the rope was passed around the capstan, and as soon as the men on board had had a little grog we were hauled up. I can assure you that it was no fine experience to go up in that way, close to the smooth, vertical front of water, with the whales tumbling out all round and above us and the swordfishes nosing as pointedly with vulgar curiosity.

"We had no sooner set foot on deck and got Sam disengaged from the hook than the purser stepped up with book and pencil—'Tickets, gentlemen.'

"We told him we hadn't any tickets, and he ordered us to be set ashore in a boat. It was represented to him that this was quite impossible under the circumstances, but he replied that he had nothing to do with circumstances—did not know anything about circumstances. Nothing would move him till the captain, who was really a kind hearted man, came on deck and knocked him overboard.

"By this time the ship was passing the town of Arica, and we were about to go astern and fish a little when she grounded on a hilltop. The captain hove out all the anchors he had about him, and when the water went swirling back to its legal level, taking the town along for company, there we were, in the midst of a charming agricultural country, but at some distance from any seaport.

"At sunrise next morning we were all on deck. Sam sauntered aft to the binnacle, cast his eye carelessly upon the compass and uttered an ejaculation of astonishment.

"'Tell you, captain,' he called out, 'this has been a direr convulsion of nature than you have any idea. Everything's been screwed right round. Needle points due south!'

"'Why, you lubber,' growled the skipper, taking a look, 'it p'ints d'rectly to larb'ard, an there's the sun, dead ahead!'

"Sam turned and confronted him with a steady gaze of ineffable contempt.

"'Now, who said it wasn't dead ahead? Tell me that. Shows how much you know about earthquakes. Course I didn't mean just this continent, nor just this earth. I tell you the whole thing's turned!'"—Exchange.

High Mountains of the Moon.

The Leibnits range attains enormous altitudes above the average level of the moon's surface and is sometimes seen projected far beyond the regular curvature of disk, thus destroying the circular contour and giving it a notched or serrated aspect. Several of the peaks of these southern mountains measure 30,000 feet in altitude, while one has been estimated to attain the great height of 36,000 feet. All the chief mountains of the moon which can be seen from the earth with a telescope have had their heights ascertained. The German observers, Beer and Maedler, have calculated the height of no fewer than 1,095 lunar mountains. The Doriel mountains supply an instance of great elevation, the peaks of the three leading ones being between 25,000 and 26,000 feet high. Among other lunar peaks may be mentioned Huyghens, 21,000 feet; Hadley, 15,000 feet; Bradley, 13,000 feet, and Wolf, 11,000 feet.

To Make a Glass Cutter.

A glass cutter can easily be made with an ordinary mapping pen and a small piece of carborundum, or carbide of silicon. Cut off a part of the nib to form a small tube. Fit a crystal or part of one of carborundum into the tube, take it out again and dip one end in secotine or any other cement and replace it. Next wind a piece of fine wire tightly around the tube and part of the handle and fix it in a notch cut in the latter. Put it aside for a day to allow the cement to harden. A glass cutter made thus will do its work as well as the expensive diamond and a great deal better than the ordinary wheel cutter.

Chased Brass.

Chased brass goods such as are generally known as Benares work are easily cleaned in this way: Wash in hot soapsuds and dry thoroughly. Cut a lemon and with it rub the brass. When it looks clean, rinse in warm water, dry and then polish well with a piece of chamois skin. Chased work should never be cleaned with any kind of powder.

CATCHING CICADAS.

How Certain Malays Obtain a Curious Delicacy.

Certain natives of the Malay peninsula catch cicadas and eat them and that as a considerable luxury. To eat a cicada seems distinctly curious, says the London Daily Mail, when we reflect that this insect is in reality a glorified member of that insect group which contains as its most prominent representative the diminutive and swarthy creature which shall be nameless here for evermore.

The way in which the Siamese proceeds was related to the Zoological society the other day by a naturalist who has spent some time in the Malay peninsula observing men as well as insects. At night, when these insects fly, the native sallies forth armed with a torch and but little raiment. The torch is deposited in a convenient place, and the swarm of natives proceed to clap their hands in a perfectly regular fashion so as to produce a considerable sound.

It is the combination of light and sound that allures the cicada from its haunts to its destruction. The insects come also in swarms and settle upon the bodies of the applauding natives, whence they are easily detached, preserved, cooked and eaten.

The Greek sage remarked that happy are the cicadas in that they have voiceless wives. It is apparently the lady cicadas who are attracted by what they fondly believe to be the love cry of the male and are thus lured to their fate by that most dangerous of passions.

Victoria and Dickens.

Literary celebrities, as a rule, were not those who attained to any high degree of personal favor at the hands of Queen Victoria, but she paid Charles Dickens a delicate compliment. Dickens, who, by the way, in his youthful days was devoured by a grand passion for the youthful queen, was invited when at the climax of his fame to dine at Windsor castle. He was after dinner presented by the queen with a copy of her book "Tour In the Highlands," and on the fly leaf was inscribed in her own hand this sentence: "From the humblest to the most distinguished author in England." The queen afterward showed many favors to Lord Tennyson, but even in making him a peer of the realm she did not bestow as great a compliment.

His Life Was Saved.

Mr. J. E. Lilly, a prominent citizen of Hannibal, Mo., lately had a wonderful deliverance from a frightful death. In telling of it he says: "I was taken with Typhoid Fever, that ran into Pneumonia. My lungs became hardened. I was so weak I couldn't even sit up in bed. Nothing helped me. I expected to soon die of Consumption, when I heard of Dr. King's New Discovery. One bottle gave great relief. I continue to use it, and now am well and strong. I can't say too much in its praise." # THE LATEST AS TO NERVES AND STRENGTH

It is not muscle so much as the nerves back of muscle which show one's strength and power of endurance. And the study with able physicians of to-day is how to keep the nerves in perfect health and fitted for the strain of everyday living. Headache of every type, nerve weakness, dyspepsia, sleeplessness, langnor, restlessness, nervous dyspepsia, muscular weakness, brain weariness, poor circulation,—a thousand different unpleasant feelings and symptoms are due to nerve waste and nerve weakness,—especially in women and children. But how can all this be prevented, one will ask? How can my broken-down constitution be repaired, and nerve strength and full, robust health be secured. Just two points to remember: Determine that you will grow strong in nerves and health, and decide to use at once that most famous nerve cure, COCELIN. It is delicious in taste, quick in action and makes the wearied nerves tingle with renewed strength and every function the stronger and faculty the brighter by its use. Druggists sell it.

The Morning Star.

WILMINGTON, N. C.

TUESDAY MORNING, SEPT. 17.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT OUTLINES HIS POLICY.

Says It Shall be His Aim to Continue Absolutely Unbroken the Policy of President McKinley.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Sept. 10.—President Roosevelt has outlined in some detail the policy he will follow during his incumbency of office. It will be remembered that when he took the oath of office he stated with much definiteness:

"It shall be my aim to continue absolutely unbroken the policy of President McKinley for the peace (and he emphasized that word), prosperity and honor of the country."

Yesterday the President gathered together some personal friends in Buffalo and those members of the cabinet who were here, and gave to them such ideas as he had already formulated for the conduct of public affairs and his own policy. In no sense are these divergent from what has been understood as Mr. McKinley's policy. This policy, as outlined to his friends at yesterday's conference, will be for a more liberal and extensive reciprocity in the purchase and sale of commodities, so that the over-production of this country can be satisfactorily disposed of by fair and equitable arrangements with foreign countries; the abolition entirely of commercial war with other countries and the adoption of reciprocity treaties; the abolition of such tariffs on foreign goods as are no longer needed for revenue, if such abolition can be had without harm to our industries and labor.

Direct commercial lines should be established between the eastern coast of the United States and the ports in South America and the Pacific coast ports of Mexico, Central America and South America.

The encouragement of the merchant marine and the building of ships which shall carry the American flag and be owned and controlled by Americans and American capital.

The building and completion as soon as possible of the Isthmian canal so as to give direct water communication with the coast of Central America, South America and Mexico.

The use of conciliatory methods of arbitration in all disputes with foreign nation so as to avoid armed strife.

The protection of the savings people in banks and in other forms of investments by the preservation of the commercial prosperity of the country and the placing in positions of trust men of only the highest integrity.

CHICAGO ANARCHISTS.

The Prisoners Probably Will be Released To-day—No Evidence Against Them Secured.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

CHICAGO, Sept. 16.—Efforts to connect the Chicago anarchists with a plot to assassinate President McKinley will be abandoned and the prisoners probably will be released to-morrow. This decision was reached by local authorities to-day.

Chief O'Neil received a telegram from Chief of Police Bull of Buffalo, early in the day, announcing that, while the police there were still working to establish the connection of the assassination with the anarchists in Chicago and Cleveland, he had secured no tangible evidence.

Chief O'Neil is concerned for the safety of the anarchists, who probably will be released to-morrow on habeas corpus proceedings. He regards it as likely that they will want for the present to be allowed to stay in the county jail. It is feared their release just before the observance of the obsequies of the late President will be taken advantage of by violent persons.

TO-DAY'S PROGRAMME.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

WASHINGTON, September 17.—Commissioner MacFarland to-day announced the programme for the religious service upon the arrival of the remains of the late President in the rotunda of the Capitol to-morrow morning. It is as follows:

Hymn, "Lead, Kindly Light."

Hymn, "Sometime We'll Understand."

Address, Bishop Edward G. Andrews, D. D., M. E. Church.

Hymn, "Nearer My God to Thee."

Benediction, Rev. W. H. Chapman, D.D., acting pastor, Metropolitan M. E. Church.

The music will be furnished by the choir of the Metropolitan M. E. Church.

CONTEST FOR THE AMERICA'S CUP.

Date for the First Race Changed to Thursday, September 26th.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

NEW YORK, Sept. 16.—After a perfectly harmonious meeting to-day at the New York Yacht Club, lasting nearly two hours, between the America's Cup Challenge committee and the representatives of the Royal Ulster Yacht Club, it was decided that as a mark of respect to the memory of the late President the date of the first race for the America's cup should be changed to Thursday, September 26th. The succeeding races are to follow according to the original plan, so that they will be sailed Saturday, September 28th, Tuesday, October 1, Thursday, October 3rd, and Saturday, October 5th.

FROM BUFFALO TO WASHINGTON.

Remains of the Dead President On the Journey to the National Capital.

MOURNFUL TRIBUTE MADE.

All Along the Route Thousands of People Assembled With Manifestations of Sorrow---Military Escort---Mrs. McKinley—Funeral Train.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Sept. 16.—The silent form of William McKinley was borne from this city in impressive state this morning and taken on its last journey to the national capital. Thousands upon thousands watched the impressive procession this morning moving towards the depot. It was doubly impressive because of the fact that, following closely behind the pall covered corpse of the dead President, followed the successor to the title and the living change in the country's history.

It was a few minutes after 7 o'clock when the doors of the city hall were flung open and the gates swung ajar. At 7:07 forty sailors from the United States steamship Michigan swung up Franklin street, the first detachment of the cortege's escort. The bluejackets wheeled into line directly opposite the entrance of the city hall. Four minutes later the four-horse hearse drew up, and a company of marines filed into position. Five of the cabinet officers arrived in two carriages. The first carried Secretary Long and Postmaster General Smith.

An Impressive Scene.

Exactly at the appointed hour, 7:45, the escort was in perfect readiness. In clarion tones Major Mann, commanding the escort, delivered the order. "Present arms!" Noiselessly and with the precision of the well drilled soldier, the arms leaped to position; the commanding officer turned about, and facing the house of the dead brought his sword to "present." It was an impressive moment. The rigid soldiers and sailors were awaiting the body of their late commander-in-chief. A minute of awe-inspiring silence and then emerging from the doors of the city hall there moved the eight body-bearers, four soldiers and four sailors. On their shoulders rested the casket enclosing the body of the country's beloved one.

Away down the line of soldiery from the 60th regimental band came once again the strains of "Nearer My God to Thee," behind the long ropes the throng uncovered, and with bowed heads waited and watched in silence. Tenderly the precious burden was borne slowly down the stone steps, along the curved approach, to the hearse.

The Flag Draped Casket

was lifted gently into the hearse and naught but America's flag surmounted by a single sheaf of wheat could be seen. To the front came the troops, wheeling into line, and moving down Franklin street. Once more the strains of music. This time it was the mournful dirge of Chopin's funeral march, accompanied by the tolling of the church bells. Behind the troops came the carriages of the members of the cabinet. Then came the hearse, and following were comrades of the Grand Army, with a company of local militia bringing up the rear. Down Main street the procession moved between masses of people all uncovered. The line had begun its march at 7:50. Half an hour later with measured steps and to the strains of the constantly playing band, the line at last turned into Exchange street, where the railroad station is located. Then the Buffalo journey was at an end.

Once more the troops were drawn up in line and came to "Present." The hearse stopped in front of the baggage entrance to the depot. As the undertaker took hold of the door of the hearse to open it and the soldier bearers prepared to draw the coffin out, a hush fell on the multitude. Then from the head of the column came the mournful sound of the "long roll." As it ceased there rose clear and sweet the notes of the beautiful hymn, "Nearer, My God, to Thee." The soldiers raised the flag covered casket on their shoulders and moved towards the train, as the band took up the air of the grand old hymn, "O God, Our Help in Ages Past."

President Roosevelt.

On the curb stood President Roosevelt with Senator Hawley. The former had refused the advice of the police to move into the depot yard, and with his hat in his hand he stood silently watching the body being removed. General Brooke and his staff fell in directly behind the casket; then came the President, Secretary Cortelyou and Senator Hawley, and then, walking with his cane for assistance, followed Senator Hanna, accompanied by his son.

Mrs. McKinley and the other members of the family had entered their car half an hour before the body arrived. The journey down in the carriage, from the windows of which she could see the emblems of mourning, affected Mrs. McKinley seriously, and when she stepped from the carriage, assisted by Dr. Rixby and Abner McKinley, her limbs failed her and she would have fallen but for the support accorded her. She entered the station and was assisted into the car in which she and the dead President had made the trip into the city of his death. On the car her relatives took charge of her and Dr. Rixey gave her a tonic. Dr. Rixey thinks that she will be able to go through with the state ceremonial at Washington, but the change of arrangements so that the body shall leave Washington Tuesday night was made so as to avoid too great a strain. "She will be better in Canton than any place else," said Dr. Rixey.

On the Funeral Train.

Only the engine and the observation car were shrouded in black. The other cars were unadorned.

Behind the drawn blinds were Mrs. McKinley, President Roosevelt, the cabinet and other high dignitaries of the government. The casket of the President, completely covered by a beautiful silk flag, lay on a raised bier in the observation car. Two sheaves of wheat were crossed above the breast. A white dove with outstretched wings seemed to be rising from the head of the casket. It was part of an exquisite floral piece in which red and white buds pictured the American flag and the French colors, a tribute from a French-American society. Standing at the foot of the casket was a soldier of the United States army, accoutred, with gun at order arms. At the head, a sailor of the navy stood at attention, cutlass at shoulder. The lid of the casket was closed. Just off from the apartment in a curtained niche Lieutenant Ehroule, of the army, and Lieutenant Hamlin, of the navy, remained on duty, while Colonel Bingham was in general charge of the car.

Throngs of People.

OLEAN, N. Y., Sept. 16.—Two narrow overhanging viaducts under which the train passed at it drew slowly out of the station bent beneath the weight of crowded humanity, packed there by the tide of people who filled all the adjoining streets. The windows and roofs of the houses and the roofs of the cars in the yards were black with people, all uncovered. The train ran literally between two lines of people. Farmers from the surrounding country had driven through the dark hours of the night to be at the side of the track where they could pay their last tribute of respect. At East Aurora the first town through which the train passed, the inhabitants had been augmented by thousands from the surrounding country. The country schools along the way let out, and the children the President loved so well in life were there to see his dead body pass. The train slowed down at every station to allow the people lined up on either side to get a better view of the flag covered casket. As the train slowed up the mourners behind the curtained windows of the train could hear the tolling bells.

Floral Offerings.

At Williamsport, which was reached at 2:30, there was a remarkable demonstration, the feature of which was the presentation of an immense floral offering by five thousand children of the city. It was received by Colonel Bingham, the President's aide. He stood on the platform of the observation car in which the catafalque lay exposed to view, and the scene was profoundly impressive.

At Lockhaven the young ladies of the city lined up along the track and strewed the path of the dead President with flowers. Some had baskets brimming full of color and others held the fragrant blossoms in their arms. They poured the wealth of their floral offering beneath the cruel wheels. Each small town had conceived some distinct way of its own to show its respect for the dead. Others sought to obtain souvenirs of the sad occasion in unique ways. At one point beyond Lockhaven hundreds of boys placed silver coins on the track and when the train rushed by hurried to secure the flattened bits of silver for preservation as mementoes in their families for all time.

Arrival at Washington.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 16.—Night came in as the train sped to Baltimore without a stop, and in the darkness only the flickering lights along the way and the tolling of bells at the stations bespoke that the manifestations of sorrow were still going on. As the train drew into Baltimore black masses of people could be seen ranged upon the huge viaducts which span the line of the road, and at every street crossing a living tide surged up to the train. Nearing the station the locomotive literally ploughed its way among flowers, for great masses of blossoms had been strewn along the pathway of the train. At the station stood Maj. Hayes, with his sister, each bearing great clusters of roses and palms—a tribute from the city to be placed on the bier of the dead President. As the flowers were passed within the train, the notes of "Nearer My God to Thee" again arose. A moment later the train was off for its funeral destination.

It was shortly before 8 o'clock that the distant lights of the national capital came in view. Now the preparation for disembarking the casket began. The stalwart soldiers and sailors who were to bear it from the car were summoned to their posts. As the train ran through the suburbs the knots of people along the way gradually swelled to hundreds and then to thousands. At 8:40 the train swept into the station, around which a great concourse were waiting to receive the dead.

TURBULENT DAY FOR SHAFFER

Steel Strikers Not Satisfied With Settlement Made by the President of Their Association.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

PITTSBURG, September 16.—It was a turbulent day for President Shaffer and the general officials of the Amalgamated Association to-day. The headquarters of the organization were crowded from morning until evening with strikers and representatives of lodges where the mills were still idle and workers were awaiting word from the leader regarding the settlement of the strike.

President Shaffer arrived in his office early in the day and remained until 6 o'clock to-night. The callers at the general offices were all more or less excited and many were deeply incensed. Some of the strikers declared they would not respect the order calling the strike off until they were given full particulars of the settlement. Others were calling boldly for the resignation of President Shaffer and another class demanded the withdrawal of their lodges from the organization.

Before leaving his office, President Shaffer announced that he did not think it was necessary to make a statement. One of the officials other than Mr. Shaffer said that it was but natural that nothing would be said about the settlement. He added that it was galling enough to be beating without talking publicly about it.

HERR MOST.

Held for Trial On Charge of Publishing an Article Tending to Disturb the Public Peace.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

NEW YORK, Sept. 16.—John Most was arraigned in the police court to-day, charged with having violated section 575 of the Penal Code, in publishing an article tending to disturb the public peace. He told the magistrate that he would conduct his own defence. The article in the Freiheit which constituted the alleged offence and which was headed, "Murder Against Murder," was, according to Most, a reprint from a book published fifty-five years ago and previously reproduced by him in the Freiheit fifteen years ago. He argued as the number of the Freiheit in which the article last appeared was not distributed until Friday, September 6th, it could not have inspired the assassination of President McKinley.

On the request of the district attorney, the magistrate said he would hold Most for trial although he did not think that the article had been printed because of the Buffalo crime. He fixed bail at $500.

TRAINS IN COLLISION.

Engineer Killed and Conductor Badly Injured—Several Passengers Hurt.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

ROME, GA., Sept. 16.—A head-end collision occurred on the Central of Georgia railroad this afternoon, near Lavender station, eleven miles north, between a freight and the northbound passenger train. Both engines were telescoped, and the combination baggage and mail car was torn to fragments. Engineer Gus Ayres, of the passenger train, was killed and Conductor Littleton had a fracture of the skull. Several of the passengers were more or less bruised.

LEON CZOLGOSZ, THE ASSASSIN.

Indicted by Grand Jury for Crime of Murder in the First Degree.

ARRAIGNED IN COUNTY COURT

Stubbornly Refused to Answer Questions. Apparently Feigned Insanity—Eminent Counsel Assigned Him. The Witnesses.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star

BUFFALO, Sept. 16.—Leon Czolgosz, alias Frederick Neiman, was indicted to-day by the county court grand jury for the crime of murder in the first degree in fatally shooting President William McKinley at the Temple of Music in the Pan-American Exposition grounds at 4:15 o'clock on the afternoon of September 6th.

When arraigned before Judge Edward K. Emory in the county court, the prisoner stubbornly refused to answer questions repeatedly asked of him by District Attorney Penney as to whether he had counsel or wanted counsel. The District Attorney then suggested that inasmuch as the defendant refused to answer, counsel should be assigned.

Judge Emory assigned Hon. Lorain L. Lewis and Hon. Robert C. Titus, former Supreme Court justices of this city, whose names had been suggested by the Erie County Bar Association.

Czolgosz probably will be arraigned again to-morrow morning to plead to the indictment.

The Witnesses.

District Attorney Penney presented the evidence in the murder case to the grand jury. Aside from the surgeons and physicians in the case, no witnesses were sworn other than those who were in the Temple of Music and witnessed the shooting. The complete list of witnesses, in the order in which they appeared to testify, is as follows: Dr. Herman Mynter, Dr. H. R. Gaylord, Dr. H. G. Matzinger, Dr. M. D. Mann, Secret Service Detective Gallager, Attorney James L. Quackenbush, Attorney Louis L. Babcock, Harry Henshaw, Captain Damer, Patrolman Merkel, of the Exposition guards; Corporal Louis Bertschey and Privates Neff, O'Brien, Fennenbaugh and James, of the Seventh coast artillery; A. C. Knapp, Mrs. Vanderburg Davis, Captain Vallely, chief of the Exposition detectives; Superintendent Bull and Assistant Superintendent P. V. Cusack, of the local police department; Fred Leigher, Charles J. Close; Exposition guards Westenfelder and James, and Detectives Geary and Solomon, of this city.

At 4:15 o'clock this afternoon exactly ten days after the shooting, the grand jury voted unanimously to indict Czolgosz for murder in the first degree. At 4:41 o'clock the secret indictment was presented to Judge Emory in the county court.

Court Room Crowded.

Then ensued a wait of an hour, but the rumor that the murderer was to be arraigned spread and in a short time the court room was crowded.

Great secrecy was maintained as to the place of confinement of the prisoner but it is believed that he was locked in the temporary jail at the Erie county penitentiary where prisoners have been kept while the jail has been undergoing repairs. After the indictment was reported the prisoner was driven from the penitentiary, a mile from the city hall to the jail across the street from the hall. Czolgosz was then taken under strong guard from the jail through the tunnel under Delaware avenue to the basement of the city hall and up the stairs to the court room on the second floor.

The Prisoner.

The prisoner was shackled to a detective and another detective held his other arm, Assistant Superintendent Cusack marching in front and a number of patrolmen behind. When the prisoner was taken before the bench, the crowd in the court room surged about him on all sides. They were compelled to resume their seats.

Czolgosz is of medium height, of fairly good build and has light curly hair, but a ten days' growth of beard on his face gave him an unkempt appearance. Apparently he feigned insanity, not stupidity, and his eyes were always downcast. Not once did he look the county prosecutor or the judge in the face.

Questions Fired at Him

"Czolgosz, have you got a lawyer? Do you wish a lawyer? You have been indicted for murder in the first degree; do you want a lawyer to defend you? Czolgosz, look at me and answer."

District Attorney Penney fired these at the prisoner, his voice rising with each succeeding question, but Czolgosz stubbornly refused to answer.

The district attorney respectfully suggested that counsel be assigned to defend the prisoner and ascertain what he had better do as to his plea to the indictment before arraignment. Judge Emory then asked the prisoner before the bar if he had counsel, but there was no answer, despite the fact that the police officers told him the judge was speaking and that he must answer.

The court then said: "Czolgosz you having appeared for arraignment in court without counsel. The law makes it the duty of the court to assign counsel. The bar association of our county has considered the matter and suggested the names of certain gentlemen of high character for such assignment. The court has seriously considered the question and after much consideration has concluded to follow the suggestions made by the association. The court, therefore, assigns the Hon. Lorain L. Lewis and Hon. Robert C. Titus as your counsel.

Judge Emory directed the officers to notify the attorneys and remove the prisoner.

Czolgosz was handcuffed to the detectives who started out of the court room with him. The crowds surged after them, but found the exit barred by policemen.

Outside the court room door, the prisoner was surrounded by the policemen and hurried down stairs into the basement, whence he was taken through the tunnel to the jail across Delaware avenue. Whether he was left there for the night or taken elsewhere, the police refused to say.

District Attorney Penney said that Justices Lewis and Titus would be notified and given an opportunity to talk with the prisoner and that he hoped to arraign Czolgosz to-morrow.

Dr. Isaac Saylim, the Buffalo physician arrested in Chicago for investigation of his dealings with the anarchist Emma Goldman, was released by Magistrate Prindiville yesterday. There was no evidence against him.

FRIGHTFUL GAS EXPLOSION.

One Hundred Men Supposed to Have Lost Their Lives in a Coal Mine in Colorado.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

COLORADO SPRINGS, COL., September 16.—A special to the Gazette from Glenwood Springs, Colorado, says:

"A frightful explosion occurred at 5:30 o'clock this evening in the coal mine of the Colorado Fuel and Iron Company at Spring Gulch, probably resulting in the instant death of all the miners at the time engaged in work, an estimate of one hundred men.

The concussion of the explosion was terrific and the entire entry was badly caved in.

Three men were rescued from near the entry soon after the explosion, but they were so frightfully mangled as to be unrecognizable.

The telephone line to Spring Gulch is out of order and a messenger was dispatched to the office of the Pocahontas mine, eight miles distant, where telephone connection was had with Glenwood.

A special Midland train was ordered and all the doctors in Glenwood Springs were at once sent to the scene of the accident.

No definite information has yet been received here as to the number of men killed, but it is supposed that the men at this mine work until 6 o'clock except those who do contract work, and it is thought that about one hundred men must have been in the mine at the time of the explosion. There is not one chance in a thousand for many of them to escape with their lives.

EFFIGY HANGED AND BURNED

By Telegraph to the Morning Star

A large crowd shouted approval of the demonstration, hissed their contempt for the assassin and demanded similar treatment for Emma Goldman.

"That's the way we'll serve all these anarchists," growled a man who stood in the crowd. "If they want to get along without any laws we can show them how its done."

"Bring out Emma Goldman and we burn her, too," cried a voice.

During all the excitement, which lasted for three-quarters of an hour, no policeman was visible in the crowd and there was not the slightest interference with its action.

WERE BULLETS POISONED?

Doctors Making an Examination to Determine the Question—Will Take a Week to Tell.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Sept. 16.—Dr. Harman Matzinger is making the bacteriological analysis to determine whether the bullets fired from Czolgosz's revolver that ended the life of President McKinley did not bear some poisonous substance. He is being assisted by Dr. Henry R. Gaylord, of the State Pathological Laboratory, and Herbert M. Hill, the city chemist, who will make an examination of the bullets.

Dr. Matzinger, when asked as to whether in his opinion the gangrenous affection was caused in the natural progress of the disease from the gunshot wound or whether it might be the result of a poisoned bullet, said: "Really, I can say nothing as to that at present. We are now making an analysis of the affected parts, but it will take some time to determine the result of our work. We shall not be able to tell until a week, at least. You see it takes some time to develop the cultua media."
